boon ever bestowed upon man is perfect health, and the true way to insure health is to purify your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Eliza A. Clough, 34 Arlington st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "Every winter and spring my family, including myself, use several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Experience has convinced me that, as a powerful purifier, it is very much superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla. All persons of scrofulous or consumptive tendencies, and especially delicate children, are sure to be greatly benefited by its use." J. W. Starr, Lacouia, Iowa, writes: "For years I was troubled with Scrofulous complaints. I tried several different preparations, which did me little, if any, good. Two bottles of Ayer's Sarsapaopinion that this medicine is the best rilla effected a complete cure. It is my

Blood

May 4th, 1880. The most disastrous conflagration that ever illuminated the streets of this village, was the burning of all the stores between Johnston's store and the block of brick buildings on South Main Street, which occurred about two o'clock Sabbath morning. Two hours after the first flame was discovered, in the rear of Straus' store, the entire block, offering business places to fifteen men, was a mass of burning timber on the ground. The loss, which each unfortunate has sustained, cannot be computed at so early a date, as the scattered property has not all been brought together. Each business man's loss is made lighter by insurance, and what is lacking in insurance is being made good in kind sympathy, a poor thing for empty stom-Fifteen minutes after the alarm was first sounded, the student population was making itself at home about the scene. hundreds helping to empty the stores and carry the rescued goods to the corner of the campus, under the shade of the sacred oak, their quick steps urged on by the loud reports of the window panes as they cracked in the stores on the opposite side of the street. For a while the fragrance, for which coal oil is celebrated, filled the air, relieved by that of baked potatoes and dry goods. A dreary and desolate scene it was which church-goers looked upon as they wended their way to church. 'The loaiers' corner, the stores which had so often been compelled to listen in silence to loose talk, were in ashes, presenting a worn-out purgatory look. Men were clearing away rubbish, merchants stowing away their goods, children looking for "something," fire engines filling up the tanks which hours of the morning;" and, probably, in surance agents were racking their brain inventing means and ways whereby the insurance money might be lawfully withheld. The losers are Messrs. John and Henry Carpenter, Linn, Pay, Price, Holter, Straus, A. Barnard, Mrs. Coovey and others in less degrees.

The engines came a little late, and as the buildings were altogether wooden, no attempt was made to save those on fire, but all the strength was given to both ends of the fire, to prevent it going farther south or west; and in this the firemen were successful, displaying much wisdom and tact in the manner in which they worked.

The stores in the Goodrich block looked used up; the tin work, with which it is set off, is ruined. The signs are scorched, and somewhere near twelve hundred dollars' worth of plate glass destroyed. The building which Messrs. Barnard and Dudley occupied was the old Colonial hall, one of the first buildings the College ever built. The entire library of Mr. Steel is of clerk in P. L. Kessler's store for six destroyed. A car load of potatoes is smothered in the ashes; a withered liver hangs up on a wire hook which Pay's meat market covered Saturday night. and we trust he will never be troubled to | Three safes are in the ruins. Stoves and find a position which his worth entitles gas pipes are numerous; telegraph wires are in confusion. Mr. Cameron's baking oven is the only thing which has preserved some of its former shape. Only one more wooden block remains in the busicause is known for the loss of either ani ness part of the village, and that came near being burned two weeks ago, but the well aid plans of the incendiary proved unsuccessful. Nothing has yet been planned for re-building the old block. Definite particulars, as to loss and in-
